HBO's 'Tiger' a warts-andall portrait of a golf great

Tiger Woods was the type of singular talent that was preprogrammed for greatness seemingly from birth.

He gripped a golf club at two months old, was hitting drives on "The Mike Douglas Show" at two years and was repeatedly told by his father Earl that through golf he could make a difference. And, of course, he did.

His story is told in the two-part HBO Sports documentary "Tiger," airing consecutive Sundays, Jan. 10 and 17. Directed by Matthew Heineman ("The Trade") and Matthew Hamachek ("Meet the Patels"), the three-and-one-half-hour film follows the rise, fall and return to the game of the golf icon through never-before-seen footage and interviews with those who know him best, including former caddie Steve Williams, golf legend Nick Faldo, Earl Woods' biographer and close friend Pete McDaniel, Woods' first true love Dina Parr and Rachel Uchitel, the woman at the center of the sex scandal that would alter the course of Woods'

Jeff Benedict and Armen Keteyian's book "Tiger Woods" served as a resource for the film, which was made without the participation of the Woods camp.

Of course, the accolades on the links speak for themselves: 82 PGA Tour wins, 15 major championships (including five Masters titles), 10-time PGA Tour top money winner, 11-time PGA Tour Player of the Year and a host of other laurels.

And the driving force behind that success, at least at the outset, was Earl Woods.

He was easily the biggest influence of Tiger's childhood and young adulthood, putting all his resources into molding his son into a champion. The documentary details Earl's love of the game and how that was passed on to Tiger. But as Tiger's career took off and he matured as a man, he grew away from his father.

Part of that was due to Earl's womanizing. One scene in the documentary tells of how he didn't bother to hide his indiscretions from his son, which disgusted Tiger.

Of course, the apple didn't fall far from the tree and Tiger himself had some very public carnal escapades. The film goes into his "unchained" behavior in Las Vegas and the relationships that resulted, as well as the dalliance that would eventually end his marriage to wife Elin Nordegren, with Rachel Uchitel, a New York night-club manager, in 2009.

Personal problems, including sex and substance addiction, injuries, surgeries and subpar performances would follow, leading to his fall from golf's elite. The documentary details his years of personal and professional struggles as well as his stirring comeback and victory at the 2019 Masters, capped by a touching hug with his young son Charlie on the 72nd hole, thus mirroring his own embrace with dad Earl after he won his first Masters title 22 years earlier.

"SPELL"

Sort of "Misery" in the wilderness, with a solid dose of the occult added in, this melodrama (denied a theatrical release because of the coronavirus pandemic) casts Omari Hardwick as a man who encounters very bad weather while flying his family to his father's funeral. He's separated from his relatives after the plane crashes, making him the injured captive of a woman (Loretta Devine) who's determined to heal him mystically by using a figure she created ... having used her prisoner as the source of the materials for it. With time of the essence before her questionable brand of magic kicks in, he desperately tries to escape. The screenplay is by Kurt Wimmer ("Law Abiding Citizen," "Salt"); Lorraine Burroughs also stars.  (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"THE TWILIGHT ZONE: SEASON TWO

The CBS All Access reboot of Rod Serling's classic suspense anthology series fared well enough in Season 1 to rate this second round. Hosted by Oscar winner Jordan Peele ("Get Out") - who's also an executive producer and one of the writers here - the program, in its fourth incarnation here, offers largely original stories while maintaining the eerie and frequently ironic spirit of the Serlingfronted edition. A good example of the first tale, "Meet in the Middle," in which a man (played by Jimmi Simpson) unadvisedly follows the guidance of the woman's voice that's in his head. Morena Baccarin ("Gotham"), Tony Hale ("Veep"), Billy Porter ("Pose"), Jenna Elfman, Topher Grace, Kylie Bunbury ("Big Sky"), Gretchen Mol and "Star Trek" Icon George Takei are among the stars of other segments. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"JONATHAN SCOTT'S POWER TRIP"

Popular as one of HGTV's "Property Brothers," Scott goes his own way as producer, director, co-writer and star of this documentary (shown recently on the PBS series "Independent Lens") about his crusade as an energy-choice advocate. That role began for him several years ago while he was putting solar panels on his Las Vegas home, and discovering local government rules that seemed to dissuade such power alternatives - and finding that wasn't the only geographical area in America where those applied. Scott then set out on his "power trip" to find beneficial uses of the solar resource, which he details here.  (Not rated) (Also on Bluray and On Demand)

"BURIED ALIVE"

Directed by Frank Darabont, of "The Shawshank Redemption" and "The Walking Dead" fame, this 1990 melodrama was a particularly edgy cable movie for its time. The variation on the premise of "Double Indemnity" and "Body . Heat" stars Tim Matheson as a man targeted for wrongdoing by his wife and her lover (Jennifer Jason Leigh, William Atherton), who want to claim the insurance money yielded by his death. They think they commit the perfect crime ... meaning they haven't, of course, which they learn the hard way upon realizing the supposedly fatal drug overdose they administered before burying him wasn't strong enough. Country-music star turned actor Hoyt Axton ("Gremlins") plays the local sheriff. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"SUDDEN FEAR"

Current circumstances have made this a time for studios and video companies to make a deep dive into titles that haven't gotten much attention on disc – and the release of this 1952 Joan Crawford vehicle is an example. She stars as a wealthy playwright understandably distressed to discover that an actor (Jack Palance) married her only for her money - and that he and his lover (Gloria Grahame) are planning to do away with her (it's a big week for that on home video). Crawford, Palance, cinematographer Charles Lang Jr. and costume designer Sheila O'Brien all earned Oscar nominations for their work here, and the score is by movie veteran Elmer Bernstein. Also in the cast is later "Mannix" star Mike Connors, in his first significant role and billed here as Touch Connors (alluding to his skills in basketball).  (Not rated: AS, V)

Butler, Heat ready to go to the next level

Last season, the Miami Heat seemingly came out of nowhere to make a run to the NBA Finals.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

In 2020-21, they have targets on their backs as the reigning Eastern Conference champs. And the player likely to get the most attention from opposing teams is their small forward

Indeed, the man known as "Jimmy Buckets" was a monster during this past fall's postseason, averaging 22.2 points per game and 48.8 percent shooting, to go along with 6.5 rebounds, six assists and two steals. In the NBA Finals he was even better. Without much production from stars Goran Dragic and Bam Adebayo, Butler put the Heat on his back against an overpowering Lakers team, averaging 26.2 points, 9.8 assists, 8.3 rebounds and 2.2 steals per game. Included in that was a 40 point/13 assist/11 board effort in a Game 3 victory, one of two the Heat were able to muster against the

The 31-year-old five-time All-Star sat out the preseason after closing out the Finals just two months earlier but he's ready to go and looking forward to playing with a cast that includes Dragic, Adebayo and KZ Okpala, the Heat's No. 1 draft pick in 2019 whom Butler believes is destined for greatness. Of course, an 82-game regular season and three tiers of playoffs will tell if that mix adds up to an NBA title. Butler and the Heart can be seen in action Thursday, Jan. 14, when they pay a visit to the Philadelphia 76ers in the opening game of a TNT doubleheader.

Designers immortalize celebrities in cake on 'Cakealikes'

Those who like their cake-design contests with a side of pop culture will want to check out one of the charter series on the new streaming service Discovery+

In "Cakealikes," three teams of cake artists are tasked with creating realistic, life-size cake replicas of celebrities such as Lady Gaga, Kim Kardashian or RuPaul at different points in their life, so one might be a current-day likeness while another might have a 1990s style. The winner, as determined by Tregaye Fraser ("Tregaye's Way"), Natalie Sideserf ("Texas Cake House"), YouTube performer Kalen Allen and a rotating panel of judges, receives a $10,000 grand prize and a one-of-a-kind celebrlty souvenir.

"There's a lot of ways that you can approach making a realistic human cake," says Sideserf, a cake artist who owns and operates Sideserf Cake Studio in Austin, Texas, "and I like to see how innovative they are. Are they capturing certain textures like a sweater texture versus maybe like a leather texture? And how can they replicate that using an edible material? So I'm definitely looking for those details, and then of course the likeness of the person. I always hope that the cake ends up looking as close to the real person as possible."

And that starts with the materials used. The three teams start with a welded metal frame in the shape of the celebrity's pose and then add platforms as needed. The artists can use any edible material they see fit, like chocolate ganache or buttercream frosting, though each has their advantages and disadvantages.

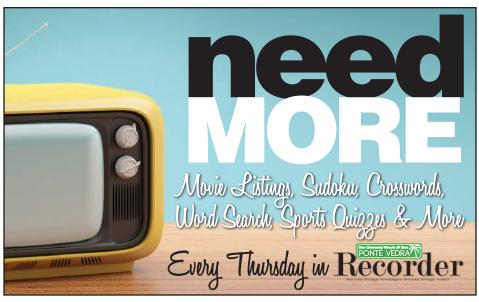

"A lot of (artists) are using chocolate ganache for the outside in place of buttercream, which is going to be more firm," Sideserf explains. "Some of them don't, and then you never know how that's going to turn out. But a big thing that I use on the outside of my cakes to sculpt them and make them look realistic is modeling chocolate rather than something like marzipan or fondant. Modeling chocolate is more like an edible clay so you can blend it really easily. It's a really, really great material to use, so I notice that some of the teams will use that."

And then, of course, there is some good, old-fashioned outside-the-box thinking, such as one team's idea for recreating the shine on a dress made from a flashy material.

"They actually used oil ...," Sideserf says. "It was a speedy option and when you're competing you have to be very quick. But it also really created an effect that looks superrealistic, like a shiny texture. ... And it was just like, hey, that's edible. It totally works."

"Movie: Herself"

Phyllida Lloyd ("The Iron Lady," "Mamma Mia!") directed this well-received 2020 drama about a young mother (Clare Dunne, "Nice Night for It") who escapes her abusive husband who fights back against a broken housing system. She endeavors to build her own home, and in the process rebuilds her life and rediscovers herself. Harriet Walter, Conleth Hill and Cathy Belton also star.

"Movie: Black Bear"

Aubrey Plaza ("Parks and Recreation") stars as a filmmaker at a creative impasse who heads off on a rural retreat to clear her head only to find the detour has unleashed her inner demons in intense and surprising ways in this 2020 drama from director Lawrence Michael Levine ("Gabi on the Roof in July," "Always Shine"). Sarah Gadon, Christopher Abbott and Lindsay Burdge also star.

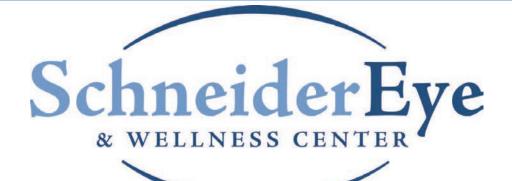

"Movie: Honest Thief"

Hoping to go straight, a professional thief (Liam Neeson, the "Taken" movies) cuts a deal to pay back all the money he owes in exchange for a reduced sentence. But when FBI agents set him up for murder, he's forced to go on the run in this 2020 actioner from director Mark Williams ("A Family Man"). Kate Walsh and Jai Courtney also star.

"Movie: One Night in Miami"

Regina King ("Watchmen") directed this 1964-set drama in which a young Cassius Clay, who had just defeated Sonny Liston in Miami Beach for the heavyweight championship, is forced to leave the island and the ensuing celebrations due to the Jim Crow laws of the time. Instead, he stays in a historically black neighborhood with three of his closest friends: activist Malcolm X, singer Sam Cooke and football star Jim Brown. Eli Goree, and Aldis Hodge star.
