coverstory

Joy Vision Acupuncture opened its doors on July 18 after moving to the area last year.

For 15 years prior to that owner Dr. Erica Joy Siegel had her practice in Indianapolis, which was known as Indy Acupuncture & Health Services and Indy Downtown Community Acupuncture.

However, she took advantage of the opportunity to start a new practice and specialize in an effective acupuncture protocol designed to help heal the eyes.

"It is a wonderful adjunct therapy and complement to conventional medical treatment for the eyes," Siegel said. "The needles do not go in the eyes, ever. The points are in the limbs and brow."

According to Siegel, that is a common question she receives from patients when they first hear about vision acupuncture.

The idea to go in this direction with her business came about several years ago when a patient with a genetic, deteriorating eye disease requested that she travel to learn the Acunova Protocol.

So, always looking to learn more about the many aspects of her field, she did and gained a new appreciation for the process.

"Dr. Boel, the creator of the Acunova Protocol, was named 'Acupuncturist of the Century' by an international congress for this discovery," Siegel said. "Before I learned the protocol, she (the patient) would travel once a year for a maintenance week to have this protocol done to help slow her deterioration. Not many acupuncturists in the U.S.A. are trained in this unique protocol, as it was developed in Denmark."

The protocol consists of daily treatments for two weeks, excluding weekends. Patients spend two hours at the clinic

"Our mission is to transform lives by improving vision and helping slow the disease processes that cause blindness," Siegel said. "Eventually, we would like to build a fund or receive grants to help people struggling financially to have the Acunova Protocol done. We are the only practice in the Southeast U.S.A. specializing in the Acunova Protocol."

Having only been in business for less than a month, Siegel currently has just one employee on staff in the form of practice manager Heather Howard.

Other than the Acunova Protocol (acupuncture for eye disease), there are many other services Joy Vision offers, including traditional acupuncture, cupping, supplements (Premier Research Labs) and herbal consults.

"Our patients are primarily looking for help with a variety of vision issues, such as macular degeneration and glaucoma," Siegel said. "Research has shown the Acunova Protocol is also very effective for chronic and acute pain conditions. Acunova works via regulating the brain and thus can have widespread influence throughout the body."

According to Siegel, the clinic is spacious yet cozy and the treatment rooms have recliners to relax in during the sessions, which most patients take advantage of by going into deep relaxation or taking a nap during treatments.

"We pride ourselves on being warm, friendly and accommodating," Siegel said. "We want people to feel like they're at home."

Joy Vision Acupuncture is located at 1106 A1A N., Suite 201A in Ponte Vedra Beach. It is part of the Mickler's Landing Shopping Center, in the two-story office building behind Sandwich Man and just one block from Mickler's Beach.

"Hotties"

Set in food trucks in the desert heat, each 30-minute episode of this dating competition series challenges two pairs of singles to make a meal and choke down extreme spicy food challenges in a bid to fast forward the dating process and win a cash prize. Comedian Iade Catta-Preta ("American Housewife") is the host. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: International Falls"

Rachael Harris ("Lucifer") stars in this 2019 comedy as a woman stuck in a snowbound town on the U.S./Canadian border who dreams of being a stand-up comedian — that is until she meets a burned out comic (Rob Huebel, "The Descendants") who would rather do just about anything else. Kevin Nealon, Erik Griffin and Matthew Glave also star for director Amber McGinniss ("The Company We Keep").

"Movie: On the Count of Three"

Jerrod Carmichael ("The Carmichael Show") made his directorial debut with this dark 2021 comedy about Val and Kevin (Carmichael and Christopher Abbott, "Catch-22"), best friends who endeavor to settle old business on the day before they make good on their suicide pact. Tiffany Haddish, J.B. Smoove and Henry Winkler also star.

"Mike"

Trevante Rhodes ("Moonlight," "If Loving You Is Wrong") has the title role of legendary boxer Mike Tyson in this unauthorized, eight-episode limited series that explores the tumultuous ups and downs of the former heavyweight champ's career and personal life — from being a beloved global athlete to a pariah and back. Harvey Keitel, Laura Harrier and Russell Hornsby are also in the talented cast. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Stay on Board: The Leo Baker Story"

From directors Nicola Marsh ("Song Exploder") and Giovanni Reda ("The Wake Up") comes this documentary about the journey of Leo Baker, the celebrated California skateboarding icon formerly known as Lacey Baker who resigned from the U.S. Women's Olympic team and publicly transitioned in 2020. (ORIGINAL)

"Running with the Devil: The Wild World of John McAfee"

This feature-length documentary tells the story of software pioneer John McAfee, a larger-than-life figure who went on the run after his neighbor was murdered and took a film crew with him to record his flight from the authorities. The film offers up never before broadcast footage of his journey. (ORIGINAL)

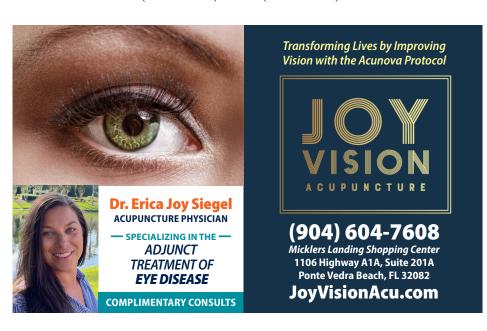

"Selling the OC"

From the makers of "Selling Sunset" comes this unscripted series that also follows California real estate agents but moves the story south to Orange County, where the properties that are sold are uber-luxurious and sell in the tens and hundred of millions. The commissions can be life-changing and thus the competition among these well-dressed and well-coiffed realtors can be cutthroat. (ORIGINAL)

"Drive Hard: The Maloof Way"

Former race car driver Sammy Maloof and his family of racers and stunt drivers are front and center of this unscripted series, which follows them as they use their expertise in this world to build some of the most high-tech, powerful cars in the world for their racing and stunt driving clients. (ORIGINAL)

Drummond takes on the 'Big Bad Budget Battle' on Food Network

On her show and in her home, "Pioneer Woman" Ree Drummond is a big fan of cooking with what's in her pantry, her freezer and what's left over. Which is why "Big Bad Budget Battle" spoke to her.

Airing Tuesdays on Food Network and streaming on discovery+, Drummond hosts as three talented home cooks are tasked with taking everyday, inexpensive ingredients they purchased on a limited budget and turning them into delicious meals to be evaluated by Drummond and a rotating panel of judges including Damaris Phillips, Darnell Ferguson, Eddie Jackson, Beau MacMillan, Catherine McCord and Justin Warner.

The one who is deemed the best cook and thriftiest shopper wins a trophy and a year's supply of groceries.

"I loved it because it was all about home cooks and real grocery shopping," Drummond says. "You know, not really, 'Let's have a challenge about buying only red foods and see what we can come up with at the grocery store.' It was really about going to the grocery store with a certain budget, being resourceful, utilizing the staples that you already have in your pantry and coming up with the most delicious meal that you can.

"So that was a competition show that I could really wrap my head around and feel authentic about in terms of my cooking point of view."

The talent on the show also impressed Drummond and not just from a culinary standpoint. These are all home cooks with no formal training and a passion for cooking, so Drummond was excited to hear what inspired them.

"They were all allowed and encouraged to bring photos for their stations to stick on their fridges during the cook so that they kind of have the inspiration from home," she says. "Some of them brought a special apron or a special wooden spoon. So those stories were the things that I was really drawn to with the show. And the cooking itself is pretty exciting."

While Drummond says all the meals on the show were "beautiful and creative," one stood out.

"There was a sort of tortilla soup that was made from leftovers," she says. "And the cook also made a refried bean quesadilla and cut them into small wedges and they were sort of dippers. You know, nothing too complicated but everything just had a little spin. The tortilla soup was made from leftover chicken fajitas. And that was another ... of the challenges we gave them, was to have a meal of leftovers in their fridge and then turn it into something completely different.

"And we've all done that," she continues, "and it wasn't just about reheating the leftovers but reimagining what the leftovers could be."
