Client involvement, single point of contact are keys to success

Magd Fadel and Rami Jalouk opened Kitchen Design Cabinets at the end of 2018 after working in the industry for a few years.

"I realized that I wanted to have something of my own so I could help customers, clients and homeowners navigate the renovation process a bit better," Fadel said. "I saw from my previous experience that it can be very overwhelming and wanted to eliminate the back and forth for my clients and be their go-to contact."

That thought inspired the approach that Kitchen Design Cabinets now implements with each customer and project that it works with.

"We decided to have each designer be the project manager for each of their projects," Fadel said. "This way homeowners have one point of contact that they can call should something come up or if they have questions."

This approach is something they have found success with, and it is something customers really appreciate.

It also allows the company's mission to truly come to life, which is to provide clients with excellent service and to have them feel that they are getting exactly what they dreamed of for their space.

And what better way to make that take place than by having the clients be so front and center and involved with the in-depth steps of a project.

"That's where our mantra 'if you dream it, we design it,' came from," Fadel said.

Kitchen Design Cabinets is a small company with five employees, but according to Fadel, quality is far more important than quantity.

"We feel like we have the best team in town, but we might be biased," Fadel said. "Each of our team members are one-of-a-kind and are always willing to help our clients and make sure their remodel goes as smoothly as possible."

Clients are deeply involved as project managers, which allows them to stay front and center with what is going on.

The fact that they are a family-owned and -operated business is something that Fadel takes pride in and is something that sets Kitchen Design Cabinets apart from others in the industry.

Helping them live up to their mantra is the fact that they offer a wide range of services and products.

"We can remodel an entire home, kitchen, bathroom or create something brand new, like the outdoor kitchen you have been dreaming of," Fadel said. "We can replace your flooring, bathroom vanity, help you upgrade your countertops, etc. We offer full-service renovations to assisting with sourcing the perfect product for your DIY

However, offering a wide array of services does not mean anything if it does not coincide with a warm and welcoming approach, which is something Kitchen Design Cabinets has never forgotten is a major component in the

"We hope that translates to a warm and welcoming showroom," Fadel said. "We treat our clients with respect as though they are part of our family and provide them with honest feedback throughout our project, so all parties are always on the same page. We want them to feel over-the-moon excited about their project and know that we did everything we could to make it perfect for them."

Part of the process sometimes includes helping customers pinpoint what their needs are.

"Often our customers aren't 100% sure what they are looking for when they come in," Fadel said. "That is where our outstanding team comes in. They are ready and willing to help all our clients find the right materials for their dream renovation."

According to Fadel, there is nothing like seeing a customer's dream project come together and knowing that Kitchen Design Cabinets had something to do with putting that smile on their face.

Set in New York City circa 1999, this musical romantic comedy series follows the story of Lindsay and Miguel (Mae Whitman, "Good Girl," and Carlos Valdes, "The Flash"), who meet, fall in love and discover that the biggest obstacle to their happiness together may be themselves. # Dining off the grid and away from it all on Nat Geo's 'Restaurants at the End of the World'

Kristen Kish readily admits she was never much of a traveler and as a businesswoman has a real problem with giving up control. So her experiences making the National Geographic docuseries "Restaurants at the End of the World" were more than a few steps out of her comfort zone.

Premiering Tuesday, March 21, the fourpart series follows chef and restaurateur Kish as she visits some of the world's most remote restaurants in Panama, Norway, Brazil and Maine and meets the chefs and people who keep them going.

These are eateries that are far off the grid, so traditional supply lines for them are non-existent. So these tenacious and imaginative chefs/restaurateurs take what nature and local suppliers such as farmers and herders give them to create one-of-a-kind meals and menus for guests who themselves are culinary adventurers.

Kish embedded herself with these folks to listen to their stories, follow their thought processes and observe the day-to-day balancing act it takes to bring their unique fare to the table, which she found helpful in her own kitchen.

"Like we were developing dishes hours before the guests were coming ...," she says. "You know, the way I come up with dishes before I serve them, I test them, we work through them, we taste them, we give Kristen Kish readily admits she was never notes, we edit and like a few weeks later it such of a traveler and as a businesswoman finally hits the menu.

"This was like, 'Oh well, we have the same (ingredient), we have this but like maybe we can't get this so we'll just try something else. And I went, 'Oh my God! OK.' So the idea of experimentation without fear is something that I definitely had taken with me and I will try to continue taking with me as a constant reminder."

But the ceding of control was another matter. As a chef and restaurateur, Kish is a meticulous planner and likes to maintain control over as much as she can. So the idea of giving that up to Mother Nature was anathema to her.

"The commonality between all of them," she says, "is the fact that they relinquished so much control to their environment, to what will happen will happen or 'You know what? I really have this dream and I'm just going to go for it. I'll figure out the details later.' And that's just completely opposite to how I live my life and set up my business."

"It was crazy to me! Like why even?" she continues. "I want to control every little aspect to ensure the guest has the experience that I want them to have. But sometimes the guest wants that adventure in the sense of uncertainty as well."
