Chef Lidia Bastianich and Christopher Walken in "25 Years With Lidia: A Culinary Jubilee"

Lidia's life: Celebrity chef Bastianich reflects on career with 'Culinary Jubilee'

Despite its ties to culture, religious practices, family economics, environmental concerns or political statements, food has a distinct way of bringing people together and encouraging conversation. Few people know this better than chef, author, restaurateur and TV personality Lidia Bastianich, whose catchphrase, "Tutti a tavola a mangiare" — or "Everyone to the table to eat," in English — has united people for the past 25 years. Best known for her countless shows and specials on public television during the past three decades, PBS releases an up-close-and-personal look into the life and work of the celebrated chef; "25 Years with Lidia: A Culinary Jubilee" premieres Monday, Dec. 18.

In honor of this quarter-century milestone in her career, Bastianich welcomed the opportunity to speak with me about her childhood, her career, her own personal relationship to food and culture, and the moments that have meant the most to her throughout her journey thus far.

Caught in what was no doubt a rare moment at her home in Long Island, N.Y., Bastianich joins our video call clad in a vibrant pink sweater and scarf that provide a cheerful contrast to the white bookcases and potted palm behind her. Easy to see why North American audiences have been captivated by her for 25 years, Bastianich begins sharing memories of where her close kinship with food began.

"My grandmother used to make a soup [I loved]," Bastianich reminisces. "It's called yota, and it's unique to the region that I come from, [Pula, Istria], which is right on the border in [what] now is Croatia. ... It's a bean and pasta soup, but instead of the pasta, she would put in sauerkraut, and I loved it."

While this may be one of her most formative childhood food experiences, the association between food and family was just beginning for young Bastianich. Now 76 years old, the celebrity chef is quick to note that cooking, for her, "goes beyond just nourishing the body."

"It's [about] nurturing the person, the soul and the sentiments that come with it," Bastianich says. "Food is a communicator ... no matter what culture, if you sit down, and you eat each other's food, somehow doors open. You are accepting that person — through that food — for what they are."

And there is no denying that this Italian food ambassador knows about people. As PBS's "25 Years with Lidia" shows through interviews with friends, family and colleagues of hers from throughout the years, Bastianich is an excellent communicator herself and values meaningful, deeply human connections above all else. To support this, the hour-long documentary features moments with fellow chef/restaurateurs Jacques Pépin ("Jacques Pépin Heart & Soul"), Mary Sue Milliken ("Too Hot Tamales"), Elizabeth Falkner ("The Next Iron Chef") and Geoffrey Zakarian ("The Kitchen"). Perhaps the most surprising appearance in "25 Years with Lidia," though, is that of celebrated actor and fellow Astorian Christopher Walken ("Pulp Fiction," 1994).

"I came [to the United States] at 12 years old, as an immigrant, and we lived in Astoria, Queens. ... Right across the street was Walkens' Bakery," explains Bastianich as she elaborates on the sense of community among immigrants to New York City at the time.

"Christopher [Walken]'s father was a German immigrant and he was a great baker, so [then] a 16-year-old immigrant ... I applied ... and he took me on weekends," Bastianich says. "Christopher's job was to fill the jelly doughnuts with jelly and he used to press them and make a mess. We were friends, you know, the weekends we were there."

Beyond the interviews with Bastianich and those closest to her, "25 Years with Lidia" also features "rare and never-before-seen video and photographs" from the now-established chef's journey to celebrity, including recollections of milestone moments such as her and her husband's critically acclaimed first restaurant, Buonaviva, which opened in 1971, and her career-solidifying dinner with Julia Child and James Beard at her third restaurant, Felidia.

An emblematic figure of traditional Italian cooking in America, Bastianich is honored for her contribution to the culinary arts "with a celebratory meal, held at Lidia's family-owned restaurant, Becco, in Manhattan. Sharing in the special occasion are longtime friends Jacques Pépin, Christopher and Georgianne Walken, Geoffrey Zakarian, NYC restaurateur Angelo Vivolo, and Geoffrey Drummond, who was Julia Child's producer and helped Lidia get started in television" (per PBS).

“Truck Night in America” - Season 1 (Dec. 21)

Each episode of this reality series features five drivers in their customized trucks and jeeps going head to head in three challenges, each testing a different vehicle attribute: speed, strength and handling. Between each challenge competitors demonstrate their craftsmanship by re-engineering their trucks for the next round. Only one can win and take home the prize money and the title of “Truck Night Champion.”

“Maggie Moore(s)” (Dec. 22)

A wonderfully twisted dark comedy, this film takes the audience on an unexpected journey through a seemingly ordinary small desert town. In the quirky locale of a seemingly ordinary small desert town, a bizarre series of events unfold as two women who share the same name are murdered just days apart. Police chief Jordan Sanders (Jon Hamm) is determined to solve the mystery of the murders while simultaneously grappling with the challenges of his tumultuous personal life. Tina Fey co-stars.

Kate (Reese Witherspoon) and Brad (Vince Vaughn) aren't the family type, celebrating every holiday by taking a tropical vacation. When a storm leaves them unable to travel, however, they're forced to spend Christmas with all four sets of their divorced parents. Family keeps things festive, when "Four Christmases" airs, Monday, Dec. 18, on AMC, as part of the network's "Best Christmas Ever." A full schedule of holiday-themed films can be found at: amc.com/blogs/best-christmas-ever-is-back-on-amc-and-amc-1065022

Jeff Mauro warms up the cocoa as world-class cake, sugar and cookie artists team up to create mind-blowing edible holiday displays for judges Shinmin Li and Aarti Sequeira. “Supa Team 4” - Season 2 (Dec. 21)

Four teen girls living in the neo-futuristic African city of Lusaka are recruited by a retired secret agent still committed to saving the world... even if it's on a budget. In their journey from school girls tackling homework to undercover superheroes fending off supervillains, they're transformed from a motley crew of friends into Supa Team 4!

“Rebel Moon — Part One: A Child of Fire” (Dec. 22)

Zack Snyder presents this epic science-fantasy event decades in the making. When a peaceful settlement on a moon in the furthest reaches of the universe finds itself threatened by the armies of the tyrannical Regent Balisarius (Fra Fee), Kora (Sofia Boutella), a mysterious stranger living among the villagers, becomes their best hope for survival. Kora assembles a small band of warriors — made of outsiders, insurgents, peasants and orphans of war from different worlds — who share a common need for redemption and revenge.

“Gyeongseong Creature” (Dec. 22)

In the spring of 1945 at the mysterious Ongseong Hospital in Gyeongseong, an entrepreneur and a sleuth fight for survival and face a creature born from human greed in this South Korean horror series. Park Seo-jun and Han So-hee star.

“Nothing to See Here” - Season 1 (Available Now)

Alexis (Alexis Arroyo) is a young blind man who dreams of becoming a successful comedian. He moves to the biggest city in the world, leaving behind his overprotective father as he and his best friend and “manager,” Charly (Kike Vázquez), who has cerebral palsy, take on the world together. This Mexican series is a bittersweet comedy that challenges political correctness while exploring what it means to chase one's dreams in a world that overlooks functional diversity.

All-star culinary colleagues face-off in 'Holiday Throwdown'

Making Christmas dinner with your colleagues is all fun and games — that is, unless your colleagues are all professional chefs. After seven weeks of cooking alongside some of the best in the game, celebrity chef Bobby Flay (“Bobby’s Triple Threat”) has one last chance to prove himself a festive-feast champion as “Beat Bobby Flay: Holiday Throwdown” airs its final episode Tuesday, Dec. 19, on Food Network.

“Food Network’s favorites come together for holiday-themed culinary competitions and the chance to beat Bobby Flay,” a series description given by the network explains. “In each supersized episode, three chefs must bring their A-game and battle it out over two festive rounds to get to Bobby.”

In true “BBF” fashion, the chefs must first compete against each other, creating spectacular dishes that feature secret ingredients of Bobby’s choice. Whoever does it best moves on to the final round, then forcing Flay to cook their own surprise signature dish, with Flay testing his culinary prowess against the chef who knows it best. If Bobby can’t cut it, the guest chef takes home the greatest prize of all: the pride of knowing they beat one of Food Network’s best.

So far, this holiday special edition has seen Sunny Anderson (“The Kitchen”), Darnell Ferguson (“Worst Cooks in America”), Duff Goldman (“Ace of Cakes”), Chris Scott (“The Great Soul Food Cook Off”), Alex Guarnaschelli (“Alex Vs America”), Eddie Jackson (“Outchefs’d”), Michael Symon (“Symon’s Dinners Cooking Out”), Antonia Lofaso (“Cutthroat Kitchen”), Damaris Phillips (“Southern at Heart”) and more face off against Flay, with guest judges Tiffani Faison (“Duck It!”), Katie Lee Biegel (“The Kitchen”), Carson Kressley (“BBQ Brawl”) and Bobby’s own daughter, Sophie Flay (“Bobby and Sophie on the Coast”), all stopping in to give their say.

During this upcoming season finale, however, the pressure (cooker) is on, as chef Jeff Mauro (“Sandwich King”) taps in as judge and Flay faces his toughest competition yet: Andrew Zimmern (“Family Dinner”), Brooke Williamson (“Top Chef”) and Jet Tila (“Ready Jet Cook”).

With a slate of restaurants and businesses to his name, Bobby Flay is hard to beat. But if anyone can manage it, it’s one of his Food Network colleagues. As this Christmas-party-turned-food-fight reaches its end, Tila, Zimmern and Williamson hope to take down their very own culinary Goliath. “Beat Bobby Flay: Holiday Throwdown” airs its final episode Tuesday, Dec. 19, on Food Network.

Edmund Gwenn and Natalie Wood in “Miracle on 34th Street”

BEST SCREEN SANTAS

Edmund Gwenn, “Miracle on 34th Street” (1947): Arguably the ultimate screen Santa — who has a tough time proving he’s the real deal — Gwenn won an Oscar for his performance in this perennial holiday favorite.

Stan Francis (voice only), “Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer” (1964, TV): It wouldn’t be the season without the sound of this Santa who asks outcast Rudolph to guide his sleigh. The success of this program launched a whole set of “Animagic” stop-motion-animation specials from the Rankin-Bass studio.

John Call, “Santa Claus Conquers the Martians” (1964): Even when spirited away by aliens — with a young Pia Zadora among them — Santa keeps an upbeat demeanor in this cult classic.

Alberto Rabagliati, “The Christmas That Almost Wasn’t” (1966): While Santa’s meaning to youngsters is the same in any language, English remained the predominant language as director and star Rossano Brazzi made this fantasy in Italy.

Jeff Gillen, “A Christmas Story” (1983): He’s on the screen only briefly, but this department-store Santa sticks in many memories for the way he sends an over-anxious Ralphie (Peter Billingsley) sliding down backward out of his presence.

David Huddleston, “Santa Claus”

(1985): Also casting Dudley Moore as an elf, this fantasy wasn’t a success at the box office, but veteran character actor Huddleston was ideal casting as Father Christmas.

Ken Hudson Campbell, “Home Alone” (1990): Given what he goes through when his vacationing family accidentally leaves him behind with thieves, resourceful young Kevin (Macaulay Culkin) deserves a session with Santa.

Tim Allen, “The Santa Clause” (1994): Morphing into the new Santa proves complicated for a divorced dad whose belief in Kris Kringle has a payoff he never expected.

Q: Will Maggie Sajak still have a role on “Wheel of Fortune” after her father Pat retires from the show? – Ginny Sloan, Wichita, Kan.

A: That's evidently under discussion now, not surprisingly. It's known that she won't become the new letter-turner, since Vanna White will be staying on for at least two more years, having signed a new deal to remain when the elder Sajak leaves and Ryan Seacrest takes over the “Wheel” hosting duties.

Maggie Sajak may have ongoing ‘Fortune’

Maggie's job on the game show has been unique to her, serving as the social correspondent ... interviewing other participants (including her dad) and offering behind-the-scenes looks at the production. She has gained her own popularity through her presence on “Wheel” and on social media, and it's likely (and sensible) that the producers might reason that still having someone with the last name Sajak on the show wouldn't hurt, particularly during the transition period that will see Seacrest start his new role.

Q: I'm looking forward to seeing the new version of “Matlock.” When will it be on? – Jim Howell, via e-mail

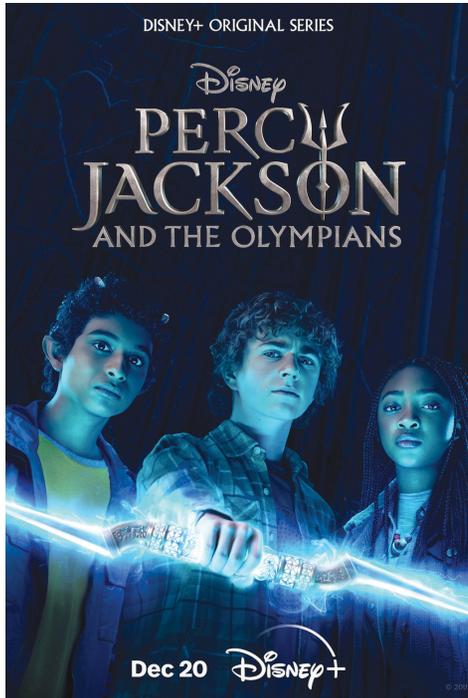

A: You'll have to wait longer than was intended, since CBS has moved it from the current television season to the 2024-25 lineup. That's a direct result of the planned production schedule being impacted by the recent Hollywood strikes, and which similarly affected the CBS comedy “Poppa's House,” starring Damon Wayans and Damon Wayans Jr.

The reimagined “Matlock” will convert Andy Griffith's Ben Matlock character into Madeline Matlock, who proves to be a major asset to the law firm she joins. She'll be played by Oscar and Primetime Emmy Award winner Kathy Bates, who has been an attorney on series television before ... in “Harry's Law,” a series that ran on NBC in 2011-12. Additional “Matlock” cast members include Jason Ritter and recent “Nancy Drew” regular Leah Lewis.
